

Internet Service Provider Sasquatch offers voice surfing of Web by telephone using InternetSpeech solution

InternetSpeech announced that it has agreed to a revenue-sharing deal with Sasquatch Computer, LLC, a Santa Cruz-based Internet Service Provider. This enables Sasquatch Computer to offer its customers InternetSpeech's netECHO voice Internet solution, which allows Web surfing, searching, and email access using a voice/audio browser. netECHO lets users to talk and listen to the Internet using any phone, without a computer, and without requiring any specialized software at the Web site visited. InternetSpeech, a privately held company, launched netECHO in November 2000.
